And our cuisine is famous throughout the world

How could you possibly say no?

But London, and the UK, have much more to offer than great weather, friendly locals and amazing food.

The maritime industry runs through the core of this country, in our history and in our future.

London is home to over 10,000 shipping professionals

Institute of Chartered Shipbrokers

- Founded in 1911 ICS now has 24 branches and 17 Institute Teaching Centres around the world we have strong links with the Shipping industry worldwide through education and membership.
- ICS is the only internationally recognised body in the maritime arena, representing shipbrokers, ship managers and agents worldwide.
- As a not for profit organisation we have the Royal Charter and are governed by a strict code of practice through the Bye-Laws approved by Privy Council.
- Our commitment to our members is to maintain the highest professional standards across the shipping industry.

FONASBA 2016

Education is at the heart of our business.

With 16 subjects; 4 compulsory papers and two groups of optional papers.

Once a student passes 7 papers they can apply for membership to the Institute.

ICS has International Training Centres (ITCs) around the world with many hundreds of students around the globe studying for our examinations held each year in April and this year a trial in November.

Once a member the International network of professional shipbrokers, managers and agents is there to benefit their careers and future employment opportunities.

FONASBA 2016

FONASBA and the Institute of Chartered Shipbrokers have a long mutual history.

FONASBA was inaugurated at the offices of the Institute of Chartered Shipbrokers in London on April 23rd 1969
